FROM a scientific standpoint, at least, Washington held the center of the world's stage last week, and Wednesday afternoon the attenuated circle of society at the Capital flocked to Fort Myer to do honor to science and its latest achievement, a practical aeroplane.

There was a distinguished gathering which witnessed the making of history on the parade grounds of one of the most picturesque of Uncle Sam's military reservations. The weather was most propitious for the event, and altogether the affair was an imposing spectacle.

The three Cabinet members in town—Secretary of War Wright, Secretary of the Navy Metcalf, and Secretary of Commerce and Labor Straus—were present. Mrs. Metcalf accompanied the Secretary of the Navy, driving out in an open victoria with Mrs. Rixey, wife of the Surgeon General of the Navy. The two were among the most enthusiastic of the spectators, particularly when Mr. Wright and his wonderful machine had passed the hour mark in their aerial flight.

Mrs. Straus also was one of an animated group who came out early and waited for the second trip, when a Signal Corps employe made the ascent with the inventor.

Truly, civilization is making rapid strides when society can put aside its afternoon tea to attend such an exhibition as took place at Fort Myer Wednesday.

THE return of the Minister of Belgium and the Baroness Moncheur to their legation on H street Thursday evening seemed to give new zest to social life in the Capital. Like the early harbinger of spring, their coming gives promise of the arrival in the near future of other members of this gilded contingent of Washington society, the Diplomatic Corps, which adds such a glamour to social events.

WASHINGTON felt a deep interest in the marriage of Miss Patricia Egan, daughter of the American Minister to Denmark and Mrs. Maurice Francis Egan, to Jerome Elmer P. Murphy, of Los Angeles, Cal., and Washington, which took place in Copenhagen Thursday.

Dr. Egan and his family always have made their home in Washington, and the fact that the marriage of his elder daughter took place so far away was a matter of great regret to her many friends here.

The young couple, who will make their home in Washington after a bridal trip on the Continent, were the recipients of congratulatory telegrams from President Roosevelt, the King and Queen of Denmark, Princess Valdemar, the Pope, who sent his special blessing; Cardinal Gibbons, and a number of others.

Not the least flattering thing that has been said about the youthful bride in foreign courts is the remark made by the Hon. Charlotte Knollys, a close friend and confidante of Queen Alexandra, and long a member of the British royal household, who declared: "I consider her the most tactful girl I ever have met."

ANOTHER interesting nuptial announcement was added to the already promising list last week, when Rear Admiral and Mrs. Albert S. Barker sent from their summer home, Netherleigh, Williamstown, Mass., the news of the betrothal of their daughter, Miss Louise Maxwell, to Edwin Corning, of Albany, N. Y.

Miss Maxwell is a charming young woman of rare accomplishments, and has been popular in Washington society, particularly with the army and navy contingent, since her debut, a few years ago. No date has yet been set for her wedding, but it doubtless will be an important event of the early winter season.

PROPOS of engagements, Newport society is eagerly anticipating an acknowledgment from Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills of an engagement existing between their daughter, Beatrice, and the Earl of Grenard. The young people seem to enjoy each other's company immensely, and their tactics are similar to those which preceded the nuptials of Miss Bright and the Hon. Gerald Lowther, of England, and Miss May Golet to the Duke of Roxburghe.

YOUNG Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. McLean, the latter formerly Miss Evelyn Walsh, whose romantic marriage took place in Denver in July, evidently have given up their proposed European tour, as they are now occupying Friendship, the McLean country estate on the Tenleytown road.

Mrs. Joseph Leiter, who is still abroad with her husband, is a close friend of young Mrs. McLean, and these two youthful matrons, no doubt, will add considerable zest to the festivities of life at the Capital this winter.

Mrs. Leiter, formerly Miss Juliette Williams, will take possession immediately upon her return to Washington of the Leiter mansion on Dupont circle, one of the most magnificent of even the millionaire colony residences.

Where "Ned" McLean, as he is popularly called, and his bride will establish themselves permanently, has not yet been decided, but there is ample room for them at the McLean town house in I street, the country place, Friendship, and at the beautiful mansion of the Walshes, in Massachusetts avenue.

With its aid, however, she not only quickly and easily banished these unsightly blemishes, but was also rejoiced to find her skin left in every way more beautiful than before—healthy, clear, soft, and velvety, with all the freshness and exquisite loveliness of a perfect complexion. Nadinola Cream is sold in large glass drug store, 50c and $1 the package.
